PREFATORY.

The Maloney Directory Company present to the citizens of Greensboro and public in general their 1899-1900 Greensboro City Directory, with the firm belief that in point of information, reliability and completeness it will give entire satisfaction and reflect credit upon the city. In the canvass for the names of the citizens we have followed the rule adopted in all other cities in which we publish, i. e., we did not stop at the city limits proper or any imaginary line, but have embraced all the territory, viz.: Pomona, Proximity, Jonesboro, Jacksonville, Warnersville, etc., and all other territory tributary to the city. We find the nearest average number throughout the different streets of the city, to each name occupying space in the directory to be "three" to the white population and three and one-half to the colored (the average used in nearly all cities in the South).

We have recorded from A to Z of the general directory (both white and colored), 6,370 names. Consequently, at the average stated above, Greensboro has to-day a population (including suburbs) of 19,110.

In conclusion, we beg to return our most cordial thanks to those who have so generously given us their support, and to them we hereby dedicate this work. To the public generally who have kindly aided us in getting up the data, etc., we return our acknowledgments. To our patrons and the public in general, we promise to make each succeeding volume of THE MALONEY DIRECTORY Co.'s Greensboro City Directory more worthy of commendation and patronage, and we will issue it as often as of actual necessity.

Respectfully,

Hot Springs Arkansas

THE CARLSBAD OF AMERICA

and under its direct supervision.

On April 20th, 1832, the United States government, by Act of Congress, set apart and dedicated to the people of the United States, 2,560 acres of land at Hot Springs, Ark., as a National Reservation, not to be entered, located or appropriated for any other purpose than its development into a great American sanitarium of the first rank, where those afflicted with disease could find relief, and be cared for during their stay in a manner commensurate with their condition in life. There were at first many obstacles in the way of a successful accomplishment of this purpose, by no means the least of which was the absence of necessary transportation facilities. The establishment of direct railroad connection with all parts of the country, in 1874, disposed of this difficulty, however, and since that time the development of Hot Springs has been rapid, substantial and even wonderful. In fact this charming resort of the Ozarks is, today, the peer of any health resort of the Old World and immeasurably the superior in every respect of any of its American contemporaries.

The pre-eminence of the Hot Springs of Arkansas is due to the following facts:

1. The unquestioned value of the waters, which is recognized the world over and proven by three-quarters of a century of practical results.
2. The official endorsement of the United States government, which owns these springs, and, through its properly appointed officials, superintends and directs the distribution of the waters, regulates the method of using them, and even fixes the maximum charges for their enjoyment, thereby protecting the people from extortion and placing the means of relief within the reach of everyone. It should be noted also, in this connection, that the government has erected and maintains on the Reservation, for the benefit of its invalid soldiers and sailors, the most thoroughly equipped army and navy hospital on the face of the globe. It has also expended, and is now expending, vast sums of money in improving and beautifying the reservation, transforming the surroundings into a delightful park, with every accessory of beautiful scenery, superb drives and unlimited facility for recreation and amusement.

3. The matchless climate. Nestled among the foothills of the Ozark Mountains, in latitude 34 degrees and 31 minutes north, and at an altitude of about 1,000 feet above sea level, the climate of Hot Springs challenges comparison with that of any resort in the world. The skies are as clear and beautiful as those of Italy, while the temperature never reaches an extreme in either direction which renders it uncomfortable. The surrounding hills and mountains are covered with a dense growth of luxuriant forest trees, among which the pine largely predominates, its balsamic aroma contributing materially to the purity and healthfulness of the air. It is the home of the mistletoe and of the holly.

4. The moderate altitude. At all health resorts the question of altitude is a most vital one. If too low, the danger of malaria is ever present, a most serious one to those weakened by the ravages of disease. If too high, the well known effect of high altitudes in quickening the respiration and the action of the heart, presents a complication to be dreaded even more than the effect of malaria, and especially is this true where hot baths are administered, as such baths themselves produce exactly similar results, which, when intensified by the atmospheric conditions referred to, form a combination that few invalids can successfully resist. It is a fact, recognized by life insurance companies, that the respiration which in a moderate altitude is considered normal at from eighteen to twenty-two per minute, is increased to a normal of from twenty-five to twenty-eight in high altitudes; also that the heart's action keeps pace in proportion with the respiration. Another thing, the humidity of the atmosphere in a moderate altitude ranges from sixty-five to seventy-five, while in a high altitude it is reduced to from thirty-five to forty-five, with the result that a person emerging from a hot bath in the former takes from thirty-five to forty minutes to cool off, while in the latter, owing to the rapid absorption of the moisture by the dry and hungry atmosphere, the process occupies but fifteen or twenty minutes, too rapid to be safe and even producing deleterious results. For these reasons, in the high mountain resorts, hot baths are given only at rare intervals, while at a moderate altitude they may be taken every day with advantage. Hot Springs enjoys the desired happy medium of altitude, and in this it is not approached by any other American resort. Its elevation of about 1,000 feet, and the absence of marshy ground and stagnant water, give absolute freedom from malaria, and while not high enough to affect to an unhealthy degree the action of the respiratory or secretory organs, it does insure a pure, stimulating atmosphere and an agreeable moderation of temperature the year round.

5. It is a resort for all seasons of the year. The impression has largely prevailed, especially throughout the North and East, that Hot Springs was purely a winter resort. This is due, doubtless, to its location in one of the Southern states. Nothing, however, could be more erroneous. In fact, it is as an all-the-year-round resort that Hot Springs is gaining its greatest fame. In his report to the secretary of the interior for 1894, the superintendent of the reservation, Mr. William J. Little, says: "I give it as my unqualified opinion that the late spring and summer and the early fall are the most favorable times to visit Hot Springs for a course of treatment, especially if treatment is desired for rheumatism or any blood disease. Hot baths and drinking hot water in hot weather mean sweating, and sweating produced by the hot water of Hot Springs means cleansing the system of these diseases if they be present, and this may be more readily accomplished in summer than in winter." It must not be inferred from this that the heat of summer months is oppressive or even unpleasant. The warmest days are always tempered by the refreshing mountain breezes which blow constantly, and the nights are invariably cool and pleasant.

Highest temperature for the year 1894, 94; lowest, 22; mean average for the year, 72. Total number of clear days, 298; rainy days, 62; cloudy days without rain, 5.

Additional evidence that Hot Springs is a desirable summer resort as well as winter resort is found in the presence during this season of large numbers of the best Southern people from every section of the South, who select Hot Springs for their summer outing in preference to the resorts farther north. The Arlington hotel, open the year round, affords ample and luxurious accommodations at any season, and opportunities of amusement and recreation are always presenting themselves.

FROM DE SOTO TO DIAMOND JO.

BEING A DISSERTATION ON THE HOT SPRINGS OF ARKANSAS. HISTORICAL AND LEGENDARY; WHO FOUND THE SPRINGS; HOW THE WATERS BECAME HOT AND WHO LAID THE RAIL OF THE FIRST ROAD.

With an empire on which the sun never set Spain was mistress of the world, when by right of discovery the American continent was hers, and her claim was from pole to pole. Cuba and the islands of the Indies were her naval stations whence sailed her ships carrying explorers and conquistadores to the greater continent which all but became hers by conquest. The empire of the Montezumas had been destroyed, the kingdom of the Incas demolished, and the country from Mexico to Peru became Provinces of the realm of Spain and the millions of people were the vassals of the Spanish king. Cortez, master of Mexico, and Pizarro in Peru, left in the great empire of the north rich fields for adventure and conquest for other feet to tread and other hands to gather. As in the countries of the South, so in the North gold had been the goal, but there had gone abroad throughout the earth the fame of a spring whose waters brought youth to the aged, smoothed the wrinkles into rosy tints again and brought its bathers perpetual boyhood.

Ponce de Leon heard of these wonderful waters when he came with Columbus, he was younger then, gold and adventure had made him a sailor, but in after years when he was governor of Porto Rico and the weight of years had bowed his into an old man's form, he bethought him of the story of the spring of perpetual youth and started out to find it. He sailed with three ships from Porto Rico in March, 1512, but lazily dallied through the voyage, landing on this island and then on that, finally reaching the coast of Florida on the 29th of March, Easter Sunday, Pascua Florida, as the Spaniards call it, and thus gave the state its name. The search for the fountain of the magic waters began at once, the natives led the old don a lively chase, up the Oklawaha's crooked course to Silver Spring, where the waters were crystal clear and deep enough to float his ships, but their placid surface was not imparted to the wrinkles of the searcher after youth and beauty.

"Beyond, to the westward, toward the setting sun," was all the Indians would tell, and led the Spaniards to Wakulla, under the shadow of the Tallahassee hills—here, too, the waters were beautifully clear, but the swarthy skins were still brown when they bathed, and this was not the spring they sought.

"Beyond, to the westward, toward the setting sun," was still the answer. Disappointed and discouraged Ponce de Leon returned to his ships and sailed away, returned again in 1521, was met by hostile savages and in a battle with them received a poison arrow that caused his death soon after his return to Cuba.

Then came DeSoto, a younger man, in search for nothing in particular, but for anything he could pick up, not caring whether it was a gold mine or a fountain of perpetual youth. He was rich, he had been in Peru with Pizarro and had his share in the ransom of Atahualpa, so he could lend money to the king, which he did, and was made Adelantado of Florida. He was young, but recognized the fact that he would be older, and while in search of new honors and adventure, he might find gold and incidentally the spring of perpetual youth.

A quarter of a century had passed since Ponce de Leon came and went when De Soto's ships anchored in Espiritu Santo Bay on the west coast of Florida, the bay now called Tampa. They were good Indians at Tampa, but in the interior they were bad, and De Soto found that it was to be Peru over again if he was to get anything—nothing daunted he set out with his little army of five hundred men and two hundred horses in the year 1539. It was a splendid force of men that had marched behind De Soto under the banner of King Charles V. of Spain at the muster of San Lucar in old Spain, and with the story of Peru fresh in their minds sailed away, light hearted, and dreamed away the days that passed so slowly on the summer seas ere they came to Tampa bay; dreamed of gold, of fortunes made and youth renewed—now the long, tedious voyage was over and the march began that was to make their dreams come true.

As Cortez found an interpreter on the coast of Mexico in the person of a Spaniard held captive by the Indians from a former expedition, so De Soto found another, Juan Ortiz, who had for many years been a slave of the Indian king, Hirrihigua, but more a devoted slave of King Hirrihigua's daughter, who had saved his life, of course, a la Pocahontas, and under whose sweet influences he had learned the language of her people. Ortiz became the guide and interpreter of De Soto.

The Spanish chief had lost none of the cruel disposition evinced in the conquest of the Incas of Peru, and as Ovelde says, "was very fond of the sport of killing Indians." He made them, men and women, carry his baggage, work about the camp and find food for his men and horses, forcing one chief to go as far as the tribe of another, then sending him back, but the carriers trudged on until they died; hence the news of De Soto's coming was not good news, and his path was not strewn with roses.

An old man of "La Louliane," embracing the territory of Florida, Georgia, part of the Carolinas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Missouri and Louisiana shows the route of De Soto's march. He passed very near Silver Spring and Wakulla, and must have halted to try the efficacy of the very beautiful waters of those springs, and he may have heard of the gold of Dahlonega, since his route turned northeast soon after he passed Wakulla and led him through the hills of north Georgia; thence De Soto marched in a southwesterly course and came to Mobile bay, where he rested, then going north, leaning westward, made the discovery of the Mississippi river at the Chiccasaw Bluffs, between Helena and Memphis.

No gold had been found, but there was news of the fountain of youth, with the further information that the waters were hot and that these hot springs were just beyond the great river; all preparation was made for their quest. There was a grand review of his followers in bergantins made and launched on the waters of the mighty river. It had been more than two years since the muster at San Lucar, an ocean had been crossed and a continent traversed in weary marches, half his men had fallen by the way, but the review on the river was a picturesque celebration of the grand discovery.

Ortiz was dead, but their adversities had been a teacher of language to De Soto and his soldiers. They crossed the river near the lower Chickasaw Bluff in June, 1541, and pushed into the wilderness of Arkansas. Again there was news of a shining metal, and for the time the search for the fountain of youth was forgotten and the route of march was northwest; besides, the savages were jealous of their knowledge of the hot springs, and it may be that they invented the story of gold, as it was found that the "shining metal" was only of a baser sort, and the Spaniards were led on to the discovery of the lead and zinc mines of Missouri. The march was bitterly opposed by the Indians, whether it was in the direction of the healing waters or the shining metal, but more jealously guarded the hot springs, and harassed the soldiers at every step.

DeSoto chose the search for gold rather than the fountain of youth, and marched up the bank of the White river; he was led into a wilderness of impenetrable swamps where savage Indians lay in ambush at every turn. Near the present town of Jacksonport, a bloody battle was fought, in which the Spaniards were defeated; the march south abandoned and a further advance made along the banks of the White river and an attempt made to ford it at another point, and, although opposed by a large body of Indians, they were defeated. De Soto rested here a while and further news of the gold in the northwest was brought to him, the march to the supposed gold fields was resumed and the hot springs for the while forgotten. The Indians' gold was only zinc. the course was turned southward again and the search for the spring of the wondrous waters resumed, only to be hindered by the serious sickness of the intrepid leader of the band.

De Soto fell ill and was taken to the wigwam of a friendly Indian chief. This chief had a daughter whose beauty was the talk of the forests for miles and miles around about, and as a princess of the blood her hand was sought by the young chiefs of the tribes far and near, but Ulelah was a coy maiden, and up to the arrival of De Soto was heart-whole and fancy-free. The pages of history and fiction are strewn with the wrecks of disappointed hopes of lovers whose barks have been cast upon the rocks of a handsome man ill in the house of a sweetheart, and the young chiefs looked not with favor on De Soto's indisposition and sojourn in the teepee of Ulelah's father.

De Soto was fair to look upon from an Indian's point of view, and Ulelah was smitten with his manly beauty and became at once, ostensibly, his nurse, glad in her heart, probably, that the Spaniard was sick, because she knew of a cure that was sure; she knew where the hot springs were, and would take him there when his illness required it. In the meantime she could be near him, minister to his wants and care for him tenderly. While her father searched the forests for roots and herbs with which to brew a healing potion, Ulelah gathered flowers and brought cool water from the brooks near by, thus to cheer him and to cool his fevered brow. De Soto's illness lingered, but withal if he had been better he might have lingered longer in these romantic shades and with such a ministering angel. The state of things was pleasant for all except Ulelah's lovers, and they dared not speak without the old chief's word, for his guest was his friend while he stayed.

Ulelah told her patient of the wonderful spring in the valley of vapors, the No-way-say-non that the Kanawagas found and took their plague-stricken people to; told him how that many years ago when the world was young, the waters of the mystic spring where cold in the valley Man-a-ta-ka, the place of peace, where wars ceased to be and warriors laid down their bows and arrows to take up their stricken brothers and help them to bathe in the waters that the Great Spirit had with his warm breath turned from cold to hot for their healing; told him of the peaceful valley where no man was ever slain; no life of bird or beast ever taken; where all might come and put down the burden of human ailment.

Ulelah told De Soto of this and often entreated her father to take him to this famous mountain, but still the old chief delayed and Ulelah pleaded all the more; at last after many days her favor was granted and the journey commenced. De Soto was carried through the forests on a litter, Ulelah walked by his side and pushed away the too-obtruding branches that might brush her lover's face; was ever near in all the weary walk, to cheer him with her kindly smile and encourage with some new story of the wonderful waters that would make him well again.

At last they came to the valley Man-a-ta-ka, the place of peace, to the springs No-way-say-non, the breath of healing. Ulelah brought the water for her lover to drink, and the old chief carried him in his arms to the pools of the health-restoring waters, that he might bathe and be well again. Soon De Soto was able to walk about under the trees that grow in the valley, leaning, perhaps, somewhat upon Ulelah's pretty shoulder, and walking, perhaps, somewhat near her side as he passed around some rugged rock on the mountain side. This was observed particularly by a young chieftain, upon whom Ulelah had looked with some favor before De Soto came, and who had followed her here and watched with a jealous eye the Spaniard's returning strength, till one day with uplifted tomahawk he sprang from behind a boulder and sought to strike his rival dead; the weapon trembled in the air, then dropped from his withered, palsied hand, harmless to the ground, ringing out the Great Spirit's decree that no blood should be shed in this valley of peace.

The story does not end as in the fairy tale, where "they married and lived happy ever afterward." Old Davilla's daughter, De Soto's wife, was far away in old Spain, but sufficiently near to prevent a pleasant denouement. History leaves us groping in the dark as to Ulelah's fate, and we cannot say whether she married a plumed and feathered chieftain or gave to some lofty cliff the name and title of "Lover's Leap," from whose top she plunged when, since De Soto went, life was not worth living.

De Soto had found a spring whose waters, if indeed they were not the waters of perpetual youth, were a panacea for all the ills the flesh is heir to, and he hastened away to tell the world about it—a wonderful tale, he thought, was his to relate, but he was not to come again to his native land—he died on his march and was buried beneath the waters of the great river he discovered. His companions took back to the civilized world the story of his achievements and recorded for De Soto and his intrepid band two of the greatest discoveries in the history of the world—the Mississippi river and the Hot Springs, of Arkansas.

One of the followers of De Soto, a Portuguese calling himself "a Gentleman of Elvas," says of his chief: "The governor rested a month in the province of Cayas, in which time the horses fattened and thrived more than in other places in a longer time, with the great plenty of maize and the leaves thereof, which I think was the best that has been seen, and they drank of a lake of very hot water, and somewhat brackish." The record shows that in 1541 he was ten days in coming down from Caligoa, a village in northwest Arkansas, to the province of Cayas, going from one tribe to another, as he had done in all his march from Tampa, probably because he could learn nothing from one tribe he went to another, or exhausting the abled-bodied in carrying his baggage he went to the next for his carriers.

Thus is the record clear that the white man was at Hot Springs more than three hundred and fifty years ago, but there is a lapse in that time of two hundred and sixty years, when a survey of the Hot Springs country was made under the direction of the United States government by Lewis and Clark, who descended the Mississippi to the mouth of the Red River, up that stream to the Ouachita, thence up to Hot Springs creek to the Hot Springs.

In 1807 Manuel Prudhomme built the first house at Hot Springs; by 1812 the first visitor had arrived; in 1820 John Millard built a double log cabin for the entertainment of visitors, which may be called the first hotel at Hot Springs. In 1829 the number of visitors began to increase, and in 1830 Asa Thompson erected the first bath house and the first real hotel. Though the fame of the waters had brought many a health-seeker even as far back as the old Spanish days.

Many attempts have been made by various and sundry persons to pre-empt the lands around Hot Springs, but they have remained the property of the United States since the treaty with the Quapan Indians in 1818, and prior to that time, being within an Indian reservation, could not be pre-empted, the spurious claims of Spanish grants having been repudiated, and under the title obtained from the emperor of France, Napoleon I., in the purchase of Louisiana, the right to the property is acknowledged to be vested in the government of the United States.

On the 20th of April, 1832, Congress passed an act setting apart four sections of land, 2,560 acres, as a reservation for the exclusive use of the United States, which settled forever all claims or pre-emptions, a decision that a terrible earthquake has failed to shake—this is not a simile, but a fact; in 1811 there was a violent earthquake near New Madrid, Mo., which submerged some lands belonging to settlers; the government granted to the losers of the land, warrants to locate on any unoccupied.

lands that had been surveyed and to which there was no title held by any Indian tribe.

These warrants were called "New Madrid Floats," were transferable and one of them having come into the possession of Col. Elias Rector, of St. Louis, in 1820, he tried to float it in the waters of Hot Springs, for your St. Louis man is cognizant of a valuable article when he perceives it, and to Col. Rector it appeared a safe investment in this warrant if he could locate it at this particular spot in the Ozark mountains. His plans, however, were not successful; the long and expensive litigation did not close until 1875-6, when the Court of Claims and the Supreme Court decided the case in favor of the United States and settled forever all claims to the lands of the Hot Springs reservation. The Government owns many reservations and parks, throughout the country, but this is the only one in its class, the only one that the government has held as a sanitarium. There are many hot springs, warm springs and springs of healing waters within the boundaries of the United States, but they have not been reserved for the people—then the very fact of the reservation of the Hot Springs of Arkansas places them pre-eminently above all others.

In thus preserving the ownership of Hot Springs the government has protected the people against all possibility of monopoly, and by discreet regulation establishes a competition that tends to prevent extortion that might come under a private control—and for her soldiers and sailors has established a great hospital for their exclusive use.

It was not until the early '70's that railway communication brought the famous sanitarium near enough to civilization to be largely patronized; then it was sixty miles from Little Rock, overland by stage to Hot Springs. A little later the great Iron Mountain road continued its extension towards Texas, and when it reached Malvern the stage ride was reduced to twenty miles; there was an increase in the number of visitors, even with the sixty mile stage ride from Little Rock, and a still greater influx when the coaches ran from Malvern. But even then the stages did not run every day; there was often a postponement on account of the weather, muddy roads and swollen streams.

One day in February, 1874, three gentlemen came to Malvern on the Iron Mountain: "Diamond Joe" Reynolds, Col. L. D. Richardson and Capt. William Fleming. They were very anxious to reach Hot Springs that day. The roads were bad, the creeks and rivers out of their banks; no one could be hired to venture out with a team; so they determined to walk. It is safe to say that the Hot Springs railroad did not originate in a promoter's office 'mid heaps of profiles, blue prints and statistics—as these three trudged towards the "Valley of Vapors" though rain and mud they thought—thought a great deal, and perhaps said things not calculated to be put in print, and not referring altogether to railroad building, but the argument in their minds was that if Hot Springs were sufficiently attractive to induce such a walk as this, to say nothing of the lumbering stages, the people would ride on any sort of a railroad, and they concluded to build a narrow-gauge, and before the year was out the whistle of the locomotive echoed back from the cliffs of the Ozark hills where fell the tomahawk that did not kill the Spanish chieftain, and thus is told the story from De Soto to Diamond Joe.

To point a moral and adorn a tale, an appendix is often necessary, and to this one it is essential; the railway that "Jo" built did not remain a narrow gauge; in 1889 it was changed to a standard, and in January, 1890, a through train ran from St. Louis to Hot Springs; the stage coach was long ago a thing of the past, and now even the change of cars at Malvern was done away with. Since then every day in the year the cars have gone through without change, carrying their burdens of pleasure as well as health-seekers, of despondent cripples and helpless invalids, bringing them back happy and sound and whole. It is a fact that is noted, that although the Iron Mountain road enjoys a monopoly of the travel to Hot Springs, since there is no other route, there is a liberality on the part of the management that is not always exhibited in such cases. It is often considered that such great attractions as Hot Springs, with only one way of reaching them, do not need advertising and that the ordinary car service will suffice; yet here is a health resort that has been known to civilized man for more than three hundred and fifty years with only one means of access, and the management of that only road, the Iron Mountain, favors the public with the most beautiful books illustrated by the finest engravings on wood from drawings by such artists as Victor Perard, T. J. Blood, Warren B. Davis, F. A. Carpenter, F. Humphrey, W. Woolrych, E. A. Clement, A. E. Anderson and J. P. Davis, with text by the best writers; then the through car service is as fine as the finest in the land, with trains on accelerated schedules, taking the least possible time in transit. There is really only one Hot Springs, and the Iron Mountain is the only road, but you may have books and books, for the asking; books that tell the story of three centuries and of all there is there today; and when you go you may ride in the finest cars in the world—the cars that run down to the Valley of Vapors.

REAU CAMPBELL.

THE CITY OF HOT SPRINGS.

From the construction of the first bath-house in 1829 to the advent of the railroad in 1874, the development of Hot Springs was necessarily slow, though every year increasing numbers of invalids from all parts of the world, braved the inconveniences and annoyances of the limited means of transportation and the unattractive accommodations in their search for relief and restoration to health. The opening of the Hot Springs railroad in 1874 gave immediate stimulus to the place. Not only did the annual number of visitors become at once greater, but thousands of people took up a permanent residence and engaged in business. Thus within twenty years has sprung up a thriving, go-ahead city with fifteen or twenty thousand people, which entertains over fifty thousand visitors each year, and which possesses every convenience of easy accessibility, sumptuous hotels and unlimited facilities for recuperation and entertainment. Hot Springs is at once unique, picturesque and interesting. The visitor, while strolling along its avenues, is vividly impressed with the remarkable contrasts presented on every hand. Strong and vigorous men, with manly stride, pass their antipodes in invalid chairs or on crutches. Meek oxen gaze in silent wonderment at the spanking teams of thoroughbreds which prance by; the stylishly dressed New Yorker or Londoner walks side by side with the Ozark farmer in his rusty suit of gray jeans; the very buildings share the general antithesis; handsome four-story brick blocks look down on decrepid one-story wooden shanties, colossal hotels overshadow ramshackle lodging houses. Owing to the location there is little regularity about the streets and avenues. The main thoroughfares follow the courses of the streams between the mountains, Central avenue, the principal business street, being a broad valley running north and south between the Hot Springs and West Mountains. This was formerly the bed of the Hot Springs creek, and was filled with huge boulders, which, with the wanton course of the stream, made the valley well nigh impassable. The government work of confining the creek to a tunnel or underground passage, clearing the valley and constructing a well-paved street above, was an engineering feat of no small proportions. It was made necessary, however, before the bath-houses could be constructed, or a business street established. On Central Avenue are located most of the bath houses, hotels and business houses, though during recent years the Avenue, having been closely built up, the town has spread southward into the Ouachita Valley, which now claims many fine streets and business blocks. The bath-houses occupy about three blocks in the Government Reservation, on the east side of Central Avenue, in the heart of the city and at the base of the Hot Springs mountain, from which they are supplied direct with the thermal waters. The business part of the city is of a substantial and permanent character, and shows decided improvement in the past two or three years. Several solid business blocks have been and are now being erected, and still greater changes may be looked for in the near future. The street railway facilities of Hot Springs are remarkably good, there being over eight miles of electric car lines now in operation, connecting all avenues and sections of the city via Central Avenue. The rolling stock is new and the cars will compare favorably with those in use in large cities.

Hot Springs enjoys an excellent supply of pure water for drinking purposes and domestic uses and it is furnished in such volume as to be of effective use in case of fire. A clear mountain stream fed by huge springs, about two miles north of the city, was converted into a lake half a mile or more long, by the building of a dam of solid masonry, thirty-eight feet high, extending from mountain to mountain. From the lake this water is forced into an immense reservoir on the summit of the mountain, 280 feet above the streets of the city, causing so great a pressure that a stream from the largest hose can be thrown over the highest buildings without the aid of a fire engine. This improvement cost the city over $150,000, having a capacity of 2,250,000 gallons daily. The fire department is well organized and equipped with all necessary paraphernalia, and shows, when occasion requires, that it is fully efficient. The city is well supplied with churches, nearly all the leading denominations being represented, and all are in a flourishing condition. The choice residence portion of the city are on Park and Whittington Avenues, though there are many handsome homes in the southern section, especially on Malvern and South Central Avenues, and the government has erected expensive and beautiful houses on the Reservation for the superintendent and surgeon in charge of the Government Hospital. Many of the residences of Hot Springs will compare favorably, in elegance and beautiful surroundings, with those of larger cities, and are pleasing evidences of the wealth and refinement which have found their way to this city of the Ozarks.

There are three substantial banks in the city, three daily papers, good schools for children, excellent mail, express and telegraphic facilities, and emphatically no lack of medical attention. The retail stores are of all kinds, and the markets are well supplied, and prices are as reasonable as can be found anywhere.

In regard to the healthfulness of the city—a most important consideration to one contemplating either temporary or permanent residence there—Government statistics show that out of a total of 486 cities and towns in the United States, only five has as low a death rate as Hot Springs. There is only one city in British America having one as low, and none at all in England or Continental Europe. The death rate in 1894 among the permanent residents of Hot Springs was 7.74 per 1,000 inhabitants. When it is taken into consideration that a large per centage of the citizens went there afflicted with disease, and, being cured, have since made it their home, this low death rate seems all the more remarkable. The rate among the 50,000 annual visitors is very small, being only a little more than one and one-tenth per cent, and in nearly all cases of death among visitors, the disease causing the same had reached such an advanced stage that recovery, even under the most favorable conditions, and with the best medical attention, was an utter impossibility.

THE HOT SPRINGS WATERS.

The Hot Springs of Arkansas are situated upon the United States Government Reservation, and controlled by officers appointed by the government. They are seventy-two in number, with a temperature ranging from ninety-six degrees to one hundred and fifty-seven degrees Fahrenheit, and a flow of half a million gallons daily. The cause of their marvelous medicinal effect is still a mooted question among physicians and chemists. Careful analysis by eminent specialists show that on an average, the waters contain 12.94 grains of material in solution to the gallon. Of this material, nearly sixty per cent is carbonate of lime, over twenty-one per cent is silica, nine per cent is carbonate of magnesia, while the remainder is chiefly chloride of sodium (common salt), sulphate of soda (Glauber salt), and sulphate of potash. This is but a slight proportion of minerals, in fact, no more than is to be found in many springs and well waters used for domestic purposes. It is, therefore, an accepted theory with most practitioners that the wonderful virtue of the waters lies in their natural heat, which seems to possess peculiar, perhaps magnetic, qualities, not characteristic of those of other warm springs, or of waters artificially heated. For these reasons this water is not portable, loses its therapeutic qualities entirely when cooled, and is of no value whatever when bottled, either in its natural state or as a basis of patent medicines.

Dr. William Elderhorst has this to say regarding the curative qualities of the water when used direct from the springs: "In many forms of chronic diseases especially, its effects are truly astonishing. The copious diaphoresis (perspiration) which the hot bath establishes, opens in itself a main channel for the expulsion of principles injurious to health, made manifest by its peculiar odor. A similar effect, in a diminished degree, is effected by drinking hot water—a common, indeed, almost universal practice among invalids at the Hot Springs.

"The impression produced by the hot douche, also, is indeed powerful, arousing into action sluggish and torpid secretions; the languid circulation is thus purified of morbid matters, and thereby renewed vigor and healthful action are given both to the absorbents, lymphatics and to the excretory apparatus—a combined effect which is capable of accomplishing.

"The large quantity of free carbonic acid which the water contains, and which rises in volume through the water at the fountain of many of the springs, has undoubtedly an exhilarating effect on the system, and it is, no doubt, from the water of the Hot Springs coming to the surface charged with this gas, that invalids are enabled to drink freely at a temperature at which ordinary water, from which all the gas had been expelled by ebullition, would act as an emetic."

It is a well known fact that the waters of all other hot springs, owing to their low temperature or the presence of deleterious minerals, are absolutely undrinkable.

All of the Hot Springs, with one exception, flow from the Hot Springs Mountain, on the east side of Central Avenue. Formerly, the hot water, with its accompanying clouds of vapor, could be seen issuing from the ground; but it is now, for the sake of economy and cleanliness, piped from the various springs to the different bath houses. This collection and distribution is done under the direct supervision of a superintendent appointed by the United States government, and every bath is taken under directions and regulations established by the government. The prices for baths range from twenty cents to sixty cents (the maximum fixed by the United States Government), for single baths, and from three dollars to ten dollars for a course of twenty-one baths. Attendants are not allowed to collect in excess of ten cents per bath, or $1.50 per course for their services.

The source of heat is a question that has given rise to much speculation. An eminent medical authority says: "I attribute the cause to the internal heat of the earth. I do not mean to say that the waters come in actual contact with fire, but rather that the waters are permeated with highly heated vapors and gases which emanate from sources deeper seated than the water itself. The whole geological structure of the country and that of the Hot Springs Ridge in particular, from which the water issues, justifies this assumption." The hot water is distributed entirely under the supervision of the Government. The bath houses are supplied direct from the Springs by gravitation.

The waters of the Hot Springs have been found invaluable in the treatment of all forms of rheumatism and gouty conditions, in all troubles of the stomach, liver and kidneys, paralysis and catarrh, in skin diseases, diseases of the blood, syphilis, etc., and are especially efficacious in nervous affections, particularly insomnia, nervous prostration and la grippe, in barrenness in women, and in all the various other female complaints, including those consequent upon the change of life.

A description of the manner in which the baths are given should be of interest and importance to all who come with the intention of taking a course of treatment. The patient undergoes a thorough examination by his physician, who then issues special instructions and regulations regarding the baths, regulating them to the exigencies of each case. If the physician discovers the heart or lungs are affected, the invalid is not allowed to take the baths, as they are liable under these conditions to prove harmful.

Simple palpitation and incipient lung trouble are benefited by careful bathing. The usual directions are to bathe about six minutes in water 96 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit; two to six minutes in the vapor room, and five to twenty minutes in blankets, according to the time required to produce perspiration.

Physicians do not agree as to the details of treatment; but all are governed by the physical condition of the patient and the nature of the disease. Some can remain in the water twice as long as others and have it much hotter with beneficial effect, while injudicious bathing by an invalid might prove injurious. It is never safe in any case to bathe without the advice of some reputable physician. Under such directions a large proportion of all who come can be cured. Those who bathe for pleasure, and that embraces all visitors not invalids, will find the knowledge of the attendants amply sufficient to regulate ordinary bathing.

SUBURBAN RESORTS OF HOT SPRINGS.

HAPPY HOLLOW.

Every one who visits Hot Springs quickly succumbs to the charms of Happy Hollow, and becomes its faithful admirer. A pleasant valley it is, indeed, and the favorite resort of pedestrians, though a street car line has recently invaded the picturesque glen, much to the disgust of many who consider the new-comer an unwarranted encroachment upon their pet promenade. Happy Hollow has, in a general way, been so happily and graphically described by Mr. William L. Belding that his description is herewith inserted. He says: "This is a dell that the imagination of the Greeks would have populated with all sorts of superhuman beings. It would have been a kingdom for fairies, a favorite haunt for nymphs and dryads, and might have been a trysting place for the gods and goddesses themselves.

"The place is neither a gorge nor a valley, but a quiet and peace inspiring glen—a narrow roadway, hewn from the side of the mountain, which disputes possession of the bottom of the dell with a creek. And a most delightful road it is, with the mountains thrusting their feet down from either side and nearly crushing you beneath the rocks and rising gracefully to the height of three or four hundred feet, their sides covered with huge rocks and tall sighing pines and oaks, which, in the autumn, form a most delightful picture in yellow and emerald. The foot path is excellent, the dell is cool, and there is a new charm at every step.

"At the terminus of the carriage road is located the celebrated Happy Hollow Spring. It is not hot water that boils up in the unique little summer house that has been built over the spring, but, notwithstanding that, it is a mineral water of high grade and possessed of great medicinal virtue. It is used solely for drinking purposes and in connection with the hot baths. Dyspepsia and indigestion have no show whatever when brought in contact with Happy Hollow water. It crouns rheumatism and gout, and, as it acts directly on the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, producing a beautiful complexion, and is almost a specific in all the diseases of the urinary organs. It is visited by great numbers daily, who come to drink the water. Beyond the spring the road ceases, the glen becomes steep and the path is blocked and turned from side to side by huge boulders and the jagged, projecting edges of the mountain. At times it is almost impassable, and the explorer would like to give up and turn back, were it not that he desires to pursue the rocky way to the end and see where it terminates or commences."

Mr. Belding's explorer should not be discouraged. If he persists in pursuing the "rocky way," he will be amply rewarded for his climb, as the path leads him to the summit of the Hot Springs Mountain, with its picturesque walks, grand views, beetling cliffs and magnificent forests. The walk along the crest of the mountain, to and down the Grand Boulevard to the Army and Navy Hospital, is one of the greatest attractions at the Springs, and should not be overlooked by any one.

Happy Hollow is the lair of the Hot Springs burro, a large drove of these interesting little brutes being kept here for the use of visitors and pleasure parties. On their backs the intricacies of the upper glens may be explored, and as one does not present a particularly imposing appearance mounted upon one of these diminutive animals, the effect is ridiculous enough to furnish endless amusement, to say nothing of the wholesome exercise such a ride involves.

MOUNTAIN VALLEY SPRINGS.

The Mountain Valley Springs are located among the Ozarks, about twelve miles from Hot Springs, and the trip affords an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with Nature's finest handiwork. The journey can be made any way to suit the inclination of the tourist. There is a regular hack line running daily from the hotels at Hot Springs to Mountain Valley. There is the more private and independent way of hiring your own horse and buggy, and driving and stopping at will wherever you are interested, or it can be made the objective point of a horseback tour. It is one of the most charming rides in the vicinity. The road is over the mountains, plunging into gorges and through enchanted glens. Notwithstanding it has been recently improved, it is still a mountain road, and at times leads by points of thrilling interest. This very enjoyable ride terminates in one of the most beautiful valleys in the Ozark range. On all sides are the mountain peaks, shutting in a portion of the earth of paradisiacal beauty, peace and quiet. Tall primeval forest trees are singing Nature's hymns over the valley. The patches of open are verdant with grass and shrubbery, and an air of seclusion and rest is all-prevalent. You will scarcely expect to find here a modern six-story hotel with "all the latest conveniences and comforts," as the hotel men say—and you don't. The hotel is entirely in keeping with the surroundings. You can expect quiet and rest at an inn, but not at a modern resort hotel. This is just the difference between the big bustling hostleries of the city we have just left behind, and the low quaint structure nestling in Mountain Valley. Its picturesque architecture is Southern in character, being one-story in height, and covering a great deal of ground. Cool, spacious verandahs cover the whole front of the hotel. Trailing vines overrun it in great profusion, and, altogether, it is a charmingly rare picture, and fills the beholder with an overpowering desire to settle down here, bag and baggage, and stay until satisfied with Nature's charms.

Nature sometimes scores a bull's eye in her arrangement of things, and this feat was accomplished when these springs of health-renewing mineral waters were caused to burst forth in the midst of this beautiful valley.

It is a matter of regret that the whole valley and springs could not have been located at a greater distance from Hot Springs, so that they could have had a chance at fame on their own merits.

The waters are very valuable, as their combined minerals constitute a curative medium for internal use not equalled. The analysis shows a large percentage of bicarbonate of iron, lime and magnesia, sulphate of lime, chloride of iron, chloride of iodine, and phosphoric acid, but not even a trace of organic matter.

The cure or benefit Bright's disease, and all kidney troubles, all dropsies of a kidney or liver origin, including cirrhosis, and are of great value in the treatment of female complaints.

POTASH-SULPHUR SPRINGS.

A short mile from Lawrence Station, and seven miles from Hot Springs, are located the health-giving Potash-Sulphur Springs. Ten trains pass Lawrence daily, and are met by hacks which convey visitors to and from the Springs. A handsome two-story hotel, neatly furnished, and numerous cottages afford the best of accommodations to guests, and the table is satisfactory in all respects. The air at Potash-Sulphur is at all times pure and balmy, while surrounding mountains and valleys afford picturesque scenery and charming walks and drives. Deer, wild turkey, quail and other game afford good shooting, and the Ouachita river, one mile distant, furnishes abundant sport for the angler. The Springs, which are near the hotel, are five in number, but all possessing similar properties. The waters are sulphuretted alkaline, and are highly esteemed by the medical fraternity of Hot Springs, who send many of their patients there to spend a few days while resting after taking a course of hot baths. Dr. John C. Branner, State Geologist of Arkansas, says of them: "The importance of the Potash-Sulphur waters is too well known to admit of question." * * * The chief ingredients are sodium sulphate, sodium carbonate and potassium chloride, the sodium amounting to 13.66 grains per gallon, the potassium to 3.51 grains per gallon."

The following diseases are cured or benefited by the use of the waters of this valuable spring: Dyspepsia, gout, rheumatism, affections of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs, female diseases, dropsy and all complaints originating from an excess of acid in the system, skin diseases and chronic dysentery. In diseases of the kidneys and urinary passages, stricture, gleet, and especially in calculous affections, there is no known remedy so efficacious as this water. It acts as a solvent in the various forms of gravel, and is very efficacious in the treatment of all mercurial diseases.

Among the other resorts are Gillen's White Sulphur Spring; Spring Lake Hotel; Thousand Dripping Springs, and many others.

THE ARLINGTON is the only hotel on the United States Reservation at Hot Springs. This magnificent building is erected on the site of the old Arlington, a location more commanding, more convenient, and more picturesque than is that of any other hotel in the valley. Besides the exquisite natural beauty of its surroundings, the Arlington has the superior advantage of a location immediately at the fountain head of the Hot Springs; here the waters are at their highest temperature and retain all their restorative qualities. The hotel is entirely new, practically fire-proof, and has all the modern conveniences. Iron bridges connect each floor with the mountain, immediately in the rear of the hotel. Invalids in chairs may be wheeled directly from any floor to the mountain, on which the Government has laid out beautiful drives and walks. In case of fire, these bridges offer sure, safe and speedy means of escape. The elegant bathing establishment is a part of the hotel building and is erected on the site of the old Rector Bath House, so well known to all who have visited Hot Springs. No detail of comfort or convenience has been omitted, and guests will find that the baths at the Arlington are superior in every respect.
